§ 194-b. Mandatory disclosure of compensation or range of compen-4 sation. 1. Upon issuing an employment opportunity for internal or public viewing an employer shall disclose in writing or electronically: the compensation or a range of compensation; the job description for the position, if one exists; and a general description of all of the benefits and other forms of compensation to be offered. An employer shall also provide an employee the range of compensation in place at the time 10 of request and job description, if one exists, for the employee's current position at the time of hire and upon the employee's request, but no more frequently than once per year.

- 2. No employer shall refuse to interview, hire, promote, employ, or 14 otherwise retaliate against an applicant or employee for exercising any rights under this section.
- 3. The department shall have the power to administer, carry out, and enforce all the provisions of this section and may promulgate rules and regulations for such purpose. The department shall conduct a public 19 awareness outreach campaign which shall include making information 20 available on its website and otherwise informing employers of the 21 provisions of this section.
- 4. The department shall create a complaint mechanism whereby any 22 23 person who believes a violation of this section has occurred can report 24 such violation in writing to the department, which shall have the authority to investigate such reported violations. An employer who fails to comply with any requirement of this section or any rule or regulation published thereunder shall be deemed in violation of this section and shall be subject to a civil penalty in accordance with section two hundred eighteen of this chapter. The department shall also have the authority to bring an action to collect damages, civil penalties, and equitable relief.

- 5. An applicant or current or former employee aggrieved by a violation of this section may bring a civil action for compensation for any damages sustained as a result of such violation in any court of competent jurisdiction. The court may award injunctive relief, any damages incurred, punitive damages, other equitable relief as may be appropriate, and the costs of the action and reasonable attorney's fees. All claims filed under this section shall be filed within three years from the date of the violation.
- 6. An employer shall keep and maintain necessary records to comply with this section, including history of compensation ranges for each employment opportunity and job descriptions, if they exist.
- 7. a. For the purposes of this section, "range of compensation" means the range that the employer actually relied on in setting compensation for the position and may be based on, including but not limited to, any applicable pay scale or compensation model relied upon by the employer or the actual range of compensation for those currently holding the position.
- b. For the purposes of this section, "employer" shall include, but not be limited to, any person, corporation, limited liability company, association, labor organization, or entity employing an individual in any occupation, industry, trade, business or service, or any agent thereof; any person, corporation, limited liability company, association or entity acting as an employment agent, recruiter, or otherwise connecting applicants with employers.
- 32 § 2. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after 33 it shall have become a law.
